STING OPERATION LEADS TO ARRESTS, CITATIONS FOR INDIVIDUALS ILLEGALLY ADVERTISING AUTO REPAIRS

Arrests underscore Department of Consumer Affairs' efforts to halt unlicensed operators

REDDING – A sting operation conducted by the Department of Consumer Affairs/Bureau of Automotive Repair (DCA/BAR) and the Shasta County District Attorney's office resulted in the arrests of six people today for providing auto repair services without a license.

California law requires auto repair shops to be registered with DCA/BAR. Licensure helps protect California consumers by ensuring a fair and competitive automotive repair marketplace and gives consumers a means to seek redress if they have problems with a licensee.

"Most businesses and professionals do a good job of providing services that benefit consumers," said DCA Acting Director Brian Stiger. "Today's arrests are a vivid example of why it is important for consumers to make certain they are doing business only with licensed repair facilities."

"Consumers may think they're saving money when they go to an unlicensed auto repair shop," said BAR Chief Sherry Mehl. "Consumers should make sure they hire only licensed shops. That way, if they have a problem, BAR can step in and help them."

At the appointment, BAR checked each individual's business license. Unlicensed individuals were cited for violating the law and advised that the matter would be referred to the Shasta County District Attorney's Office for adjudication.

The six individuals who were taken into custody were cited for operating without a license and then released. They will appear in court and could face fines of up to $1,000 and up to six months in jail.

Today's sting operation marks the second within the last two months by BAR's Sacramento field office, targeting unregistered individuals who advertised auto repair services on the internet.

In April, BAR partnered with the Division of Investigation to conduct a sting operation in the Sacramento area that resulted in 10 arrests of unlicensed operators. BAR investigators responded to online ads and made appointments with these individuals to repair an automobile that BAR set up for the purpose of the sting. On June 9th, BAR arrested six people in a similar sting in San Diego.

BAR encourages consumers to remember the following tips before taking a vehicle to an automotive repair shop:

- Verify the Automotive Repair Dealer's license is valid by checking online at www.bar.ca.gov., or call 1-800-952-5210.
- Ask for a written estimate for any repairs before work begins.
- Ask for the return of any parts replaced during the repair.
- Ask for a detailed final invoice upon completion.

Consumers can find out the status of a license, file a complaint or get more information by calling the Department of Consumer Affairs hotline at 1-800-952-5210 or on the DCA Web site at www.dca.gov.

The Bureau of Automotive Repair operates under the umbrella of the California Department of Consumer Affairs. BAR regulates more than 34,000 licensed Automotive Repair Dealers.
